EllynAnne's Apron Memories® Newsletter | October 17, 2009

Hey! The lovely and oh-so-clever vintage hostess has a new tip! I find these bits of domestic guidance in one of my favorite resources, 2002 Household Helps, published in 1933. I love looking through old books (especially those on etiquette) and magazines. The language alone is so different from how we speak today – expressive and no whatever's. Words really counted then.

Language, too, is behind my tardiness with this newsletter and sporadic blogging. “Good Enough” may be the gold standard in all other phases of my life, but not when it comes to my writing. I strive for the blog and this newsletter to be good reads and worthy of your valuable time.

As a thank you to y'all for reading this newsletter, my publisher has provided a copy of the newly published Cake Wrecks to giveaway. Winning subscriber will be selected Tuesday, October 22nd. Cake Wrecks was just reviewed in the NYTimes.

My October 8th blog is one I've been meaning to write for several months. I hope you'll take me at my word and pop over.

Helpful Beauty Hints

Don't eat too much, don't eat too quickly, don't over indulge in meat, fish, eggs, sweets or pastry and don't try foolish diets.

Above all, remember that health is the basis of real beauty. Sparkling eyes, glowing skin, vitality and pep will make plain features look attractive.
